Conference Overview

Trauma-Focused Cognitive-Behavioral Therapy (TF-CBT), developed by Judith Cohen, Anthony Mannarino, and Esther Deblinger, is an empirically supported treatment for children and families exposed to traumatic life events. This two-day training will provide an intensive review of all of the TF-CBT treatment components, with a specific focus on clinical implementation strategies.

The information presented in this CE offering reflects the opinion of the presenter. As with all science, there may be multiple explanations for the data and multiple reasonable conclusions.

Disclosure of Significant Relationships with Relevant Commercial Companies

In accordance with the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) and the policy of Allegheny General Hospital, presenters must disclose all relevant financial relationships, which in the context of their presentation(s), could be perceived as a real or apparent conflict of interest, (e.g., ownership of stock, honorariums, or consulting fees). Any identifiable conflicts will be resolved prior to the activity. Any such relationships will be disclosed to the learner prior to the presentation(s).

Dr. Anthony Mannarino discloses Grant/Research Support from SAMHSA, Other financial support from Guilford and Oxford

Intended Audience and Conference Objectives

This conference is intended for mental health professionals, including psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, licensed counselors, and licensed nurses.

At the conclusion of this conference, participants should be able to:

- Discuss the empirical support for TF-CBT
- Describe the problems addressed by TF-CBT and the core values of this treatment model
- Recognize the importance of parents/caretakers as part of the TF-CBT treatment model
- Describe relaxation skills, affective modulation, and cognitive coping as ways to enhance self-regulation
- Relate the importance of the trauma narration and cognitive processing of the trauma in TF-CBT
- Discuss the role of safety education and safety planning in the TF-CBT mode
