

Biography

John G Hunter, M.D., FACS, FRCS Edin

Dr. John Hunter attended medical school at the University of Pennsylvania. His surgical residency took place at the University of Utah, and he did fellowships in surgical endoscopy at the Massachusetts General Hospital and the University of Western Ontario. Following his fellowships, Dr. Hunter returned to Utah in 1988 to start the surgical endoscopy and minimally invasive surgery program at the University. In 1992, he relocated to Emory University in Atlanta, where he served as Chief of GI surgery and Vice Chair of Surgery (clinical). Nine years later, in 2001, Dr. Hunter traveled to Oregon Health & Science University to become the Mackenzie Chair of Surgery and Surgeon in Chief of the OHSU health system. He was the Interim Dean of the OHSU School of Medicine in 2016-17, then became the Chief Clinical Officer and Chair of the OHSU Practice Plan. Since late 2017, Dr. Hunter has served as an Executive Vice President of OHSU and the Chief Executive Officer of OHSU Health. Dr. Hunter served the American Board of Surgery (ABS) for 13 years, chairing the ABS in 2016-17. He has been President of several international surgical societies including the SSAT and SAGES, and is currently the Past-President of the International Society of Surgery (ISS-SIC).
